

Buzz Me! by GiggleUp - All New Interactive Toy Phone for Learning and Play

Melbourne, Australia - GiggleUp today announced the release of its latest kids app, Buzz Me! Toy Phone, an all-in-one activity center for toddlers and young children featuring 24 mini games designed to educate and entertain. To cater for younger minds, the gameplay is kept simple yet effective, with plenty of interactive elements to arouse children's curiosity and help introduce early learning concepts.

This app comes with colorful illustrations, playful animations that respond to touch, as well as a clear voice guide to gently instruct and encourage. Designed to look like a regular mobile phone, this app provides a safe and kid-friendly environment for children to play grown-ups and explore with calling and texting - without the added worry for parents. It comes with 24 fun games and activities that target different areas of learning including memory and spatial reasoning, colors and shapes, numbers, the alphabet, and many more.

Fun and creative games set in everyday scenarios help young children to appreciate and develop an understanding of the way things work in the world around us. These may include learning about different types of weather, days in the week, animals and their natural habitats and many others. Learn to use directions to help the little ant get to the yummy food! Or simply have fun with the kids photobooth, virtual aquarium and sticker books. Play is learning in itself.

Why stop at learning in English? With multiple languages to choose from, including English, Bokmål, Norwegian, Danish, Dutch, French, German, Italian, Japanese, Korean, Portuguese, Russian, Chinese, Spanish and Swedish - all recorded by native speakers - parents can join their kids in learning exciting new languages together.
